Five more school days, $300,000 await Carmel students

By TAMARA GRIPPI

CARMEL SCHOOLS will receive a major boost in funding for textbooks, libraries and science equipment from the series of statewide education bills signed by Governor Pete Wilson August 19. The total increase is estimated at $300,000, based on a student population of 2,450.

In addition, each school in the Carmel Unified School District will receive a one-time grant of at least $10,000.

"It will fill a valuable need for the district," said Carmel School Board President Annette Yee Steck. "I'm so glad the state has put an emphasis on education."

Normally, Carmel schools receive little state funding for books and science equipment, according to superintendent Joe Jaconette.

The bonuses of the legislation will provide:

■ An additional $43.65 per student for textbooks for the next four years. Currently the district receives $29 per elementary student and only $19 per high school student for books.

Jaconette said the district will most likely be using the money for new social studies and science textbooks.

■ A one-time grant of $12.85 per student for new science lab equipment. Jaconette said the district will be ask-

HUMOR OVERLAY DISTRICT BESTOWED ON BILL BATES

THE CITY of Carmel-by-the-Sea honored Pine Cone cartoonist Bill Bates with his very own Special District at the council meeting Sept. 1 Mayor Ken White read the proclamation:

■ The Codes of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea allow special recognition of properties which exhibit certain characteristics. Included among those characteristics are character, notable construction, uniqueness and important person.

Constitution trips up ban on walking tours

By TAMARA GRIPPI

MORE THAN a year after the Carmel City Council voted to ban commercial walking tours in town, the city attorney is recommending a turn-around because of Constitutional guarantees of free speech.

In an August 21 memo to Carmel city administrator Jere Kersnar, City Attorney Don Freeman advised that "rather than eliminating walking tours altogether, the city needs to consider providing a reasonable period of time a walking tour may operate."

Gale Wrausmann

Freeman's memo even recommends that the city give up its ban on walking tours in the residential districts.

He says that since Carmel allows other commercial uses such as delivery trucks in the residential district, the city should consider allowing walking tours during "a reasonable span of hours" similar to what is allowed to the delivery trucks.

Gale Wrausmann, who began leading walking tours in January 1996, is the only commercial operator in town.

Although officials declined to renew Wrausmann's original permit, they have allowed her to continue leading her tours in the meantime because the city council never adopted an ordinance to enforce its ban.

In his recent memo, Freeman also explained that if the city wants to regulate walking tours at all, it must demonstrate that it is protecting "a legitimate government interest."

Before any ordinance can be drafted, the city should prepare a study showing how walking tours affect the commercial district, Freeman said. Such a study would look at the flow of pedestrians on city sidewalks.

In August 1997, the council voted 3-2 to allow only nonprofit organizations to lead walking tours for occasional fund raisers.

At that time, the majority of council members agreed that commercial walking tours didn't fit with Carmel's residential character. Some locals were worried that the tours would intrude on their privacy.

Supporters, however, have argued that the tours offer a unique way for residents and tourists alike to explore the village.

Kreyenhagen now pleads 'no contest'

By PAUL MILLER

THE HOUSE MATE of former Carmel Planning Commission Chair Yoko Whitaker pleaded "no contest" this week to a felony charge of cultivating marijuana.

Robert Kreyenhagen entered the plea before Judge Marla Anderson September 2. Because he has no prior felony or drug convictions, his sentencing was deferred pending his enrollment in a drug education and rehabilitation program, according to Assistant District Attorney Robert Hatton. If Kreyenhagen completes the program — which can last from one-and-one-half to three years and includes periodic testing for drug use — the case against him can be dismissed.

Hatton said the program was put in place by the legislature to give first-time drug offenders a chance to "see the light."

Whitaker also pleaded no contest to the misdemeanor possession charge brought against her. She was fined $150 and put on probation last month.

Kreyenhagen's plea ends the Youth center gets recording studio

CARMEL'S outstanding youth center got even better this week, with the addition of a high-tech recording studio that will allow teens with talent to cut their own CDs.

The studio was the brainchild of a group of youth center supporters, including Russ Campbell, Brian Congelton, Chris McKay, Greg Kraft and Stu Heydon. They brought the project to life with contributions from the Talbott Foundation, the Monterey Blues Festival, the Carmel Rotary Club and others. Youth Center director Pat Lenz did the wiring. Composer Alan Silvestri donated some equipment.

Licensed inspector to test fire alarms at Hacienda Carmel

By TAMARA GRIPPI

RESPONDING TO a warning letter from the Cypress Fire Protection District, the manager of Hacienda Carmel has notified residents of problems with the fire alarms and made arrangements for an independent, licensed inspector to test the systems.

The alarm company is scheduled to inspect the Carmel Valley retirement community September 9 and 10, according to Hacienda general manager George Piercy.

In a letter dated August 25, Cypress fire marshal Greg Furey gave Piercy a 30 day warning to either fully restore the existing alarm system or provide another one.

"There's excellent cooperation," Furey told The Pine Cone this week. "They've complied with everything I've asked for."

Furey explained that Hacienda has a complex alarm system with some parts that may not work. The management will have to decide whether to repair the more complicated alarm system or replace it with one that satisfies the minimum safety requirements.

"We want to make sure that whatever works, works 100 percent," Furey said.

Acting on a resident's complaint, Furey inspected Hacienda's systems and tested the alarm in her residence which wasn't functioning properly. The woman claimed that the alarm — meant to protect her 91-year old mother — had not worked since 1995. "My mother would not stand a chance escaping a fire in her unit because of this irresponsible policy. Multiply that by the other 300 residents," she wrote in her complaint.

Furey also found six different "trouble lights" blinking on the alarm system's main panel. Such lights could indicate a short circuit or a device that's not working, he said.

Fire officials have a duty to act immediately on complaints of fire safety violations, Furey explained.

County fiddles while Wall St. burns

By KIRSTIE WILDE

MONTEREY COUNTY treasurer Lou Solton had some surprisingly good news for the Board of Supervisors this week when he reported on how the plummeting stock market has affected the county's investment portfolio.

The citizens of the county, he said, are more than $10 million richer now than we were just 60 days ago.

Solton explained that the county has profited along with the bond market, which benefits when stock investors jump ship.

"Our portfolio has in fact increased substantially in the past few weeks," Solton told the supervisors. "You should know that the county's investments are safe and somewhat immune to fluctuations in the world-wide markets."

Solton told The Pine Cone that the county has $360 million invested in fixed income securities, which have jumped 2.87 percent since June 30. The Dow lost 17 percent of its value during the same period.

Police & Sheriff's Log

Man screaming because the sun came out

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Department last week.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 23

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Traffic hazard on Santa Rita — numerous vehicles parked restricting roadway width below 9 feet. Contacted staff at Forest Theater and had vehicles moved.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of loud music on Lobos. Contacted resident who turned down the music and shut the front windows.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Art gallery reports theft of small sculpture by two subjects. When confronted, subjects said sculpture was hidden in a planter box. Item returned and subjects left the area.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Construction work [prohibited on Sundays] in progress at home on San Antonio. Contacted laborer and advised him to cease work.

Carmel Valley: Subject was stopped on Carmel Valley Road at Carmel Middle School for a traffic infraction and was subsequently arrested for DUI.

Pebble Beach: Individual reported someone stole his laptop computer out of his vehicle while it was parked at the Spanish Bay Inn.

Carmel Valley: Subject stopped on Carmel Valley Road at Rancho San Carlos for numerous vehicle code violations. She was subsequently arrested by the CHP for driving under the influence of an alcoholic beverage.

Carmel area: Subject stopped on Rio Road for vehicle code violations. Vehicle was found to be stolen out of Eureka. The subject and her two passengers were arrested for being in possession of a stolen vehicle. Transported to County Jail for booking.

Carmel area: Observed a 1987 Ford Thunderbird parked at the Crossroads with expired registration from September, 1997. The car was towed and stored at Monterey Garage.

Carmel Valley: Berwick Drive resident reported what he thought was a distress light on a nearby mountain top. Turned out to be a construction job on Rancho San Carlos Road.

MONDAY, AUGUST 24

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Courtesy transport to the Mission Inn of two British tourists.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Business on Ocean near San Carlos reported that a customer bought several items at about 3 p.m. and paid with a personal check. He returned around 6:30 and wanted to return some of the items. Shopkeeper became suspicious but has not attempted to cash the check. Advised to contact police if any problems arise with the check.

CHP plea: Stop abusing cell phone 911

By KIRSTIE WILDE

ONE THOUSAND, seven hundred numskulls called 911 from their cell phones in July. The emergency operators at the California Highway Patrol Dispatch Center in Salinas heard from people who wanted directions, who wanted to know why traffic was slow, who wanted the dispatcher to call their relatives and say they'd be late. One local guy even called 911 in the following exchange:

Man: "Where can I find an all-night laundromat?"

Dispatcher: "Sir, don't you know this is the 911 emergency operator?"

Man: "I know, but who else is up this time of night?"

The advice from the CHP's Rolf Trondsen: If you want directions, advice, or just need to hear a human voice . . . call your mother, your therapist or the CHP non-emergency line at 455-1826.

And please, reserve cell phone 911 for real emergencies, like reporting a drunk driver, a collision, an assault, somebody shooting out of a vehicle or a refrigerator blocking traffic lanes.

You might save the life of a person on hold who REALLY needs 911

"property," there is no question in anyone's mind that Bill Bates is a character. Even a cursory inspection of our Post Office will confirm that much of his portfolio qualifies as notable construction in that it literally supports the walls of that venerable institution; his unique talent has been amusing (and amazing) us for years; and some would argue that he has actually become an important person.

Therefore the City of Carmel-By-the-Sea has determined to recognize these achievements through the establishment of a completely unofficial, special district to wit, the

BILL BATES
HUMOR OVERLAY DISTRICT

The District is defined as a perpetual two-foot radius around the personage of Bill Bates. Individuals entering the District are prohibited from having a bad day, are required to smile, and most importantly, are required to understand the punch line.

Every effort shall be made to preserve the Bates Overlay District in perpetuity as a genuine Carmel-By-The-Sea treasure for the benefit of future generations.

Yellow Brick Road hands out plenty of green

By KIRSTIE WILDE

THE YELLOW Brick Road Benefit Shop in Carmel Rancho had a great month in August, donating $23,000 to local charities. President Beverly Ambort of Carmel says she expects the shop's most recent checks to come to $17,000.

"People are donating more things for us to sell these days," Ambort told The Pine Cone, "and we can sell whatever they bring in!" The shop welcomes all gently used or new items, such as clothing, furniture, books, jewelry, toys, or household goods.

Yellow Brick Road gives away all the money it raises every month. The $23,000 was divided among Carmel Panther Football (for athletic equipment), the library foundation (for talking books), the Carmel Valley Youth Center (to improve the pool), the Monterey Peninsula Choral Society (to fund the children's chorus) and several other charitable organizations in Salinas, Monterey and the peninsula.

So far this year, the shop (an outreach of Carmel Presbyterian Church) has donated $120,350 to local charities.

ing the teachers to help decide what science lab equipment will be most needed.

"It's an extra boost to bring the hands-on equipment into the classroom and upgrade," Jaconette said.

■ An ongoing grant of $28.50 per student to purchase new library books.

■ Incentive funds to decrease class size at the ninth grade level. That money is only enough to reduce class size for the second semester of the upcoming school year. Social studies classes will most likely benefit from these funds. Last year, Carmel Unified received state money to reduce ninth grade English classes to 20 students.

■ An additional five days of school per year for Carmel students. The state is requiring that all districts stop using any school days for teacher training workshops.

While the state currently allows districts to use eight days out of the year for training sessions, Carmel only uses five of those days. Jaconette said that Carmel Unified will have to reduce its staff training to only three days.

While officials were enthusiastic about new funds coming into the classrooms, they were disappointed that little money is available to improve school buildings — particularly the deferred maintenance grant, which was cut by Wilson.

Last year Carmel Unified used money from deferred maintenance grants to fix the roofs on Carmel High.

However, a $9.2 billion school bond that would fund school construction will be on the November ballot. If that bond passes, it would fund about 80 percent of the construction and repair work that is needed in the Carmel schools, Jaconette said. Those costs would run in the millions of dollars.

"There's a tremendous shortage of state dollars for school construction," Jaconette said.

Carmel High School, Carmel Middle and River School are all in need of major reconstruction, Jaconette said. The plumbing, wiring and heating systems need to be replaced.

Carmel Unified also had to take out several hundreds of thousands of dollars in loans to pay for the extra buildings needed for class size reduction in grades kindergarten through third.

"We were one of the first districts in the state to do elementary class size reduction," Jaconette said. "We were counting on legislation to help with that (paying for the buildings)."

Jaconette said he was also disappointed that under the new legislation Carmel won't be eligible for funds for after-school programs.

The criteria for that money is based on the percentage of low-income students in the district.

A 'mite tired' Enid Sales exits the city scene

By TAMARA GRIPPI

NEARLY SIX months after Enid Sales survived an attempt to oust her from the Historic Preservation Committee, the outspoken preservationist has quietly made her exit.

With Sales' term on the committee expiring next month, the Carmel City Council voted unanimously September 2 to replace Sales with Kathryn Gualtieri, the former Historic Preservation Officer for the state of California.

When asked by The Pine Cone if she wanted to be reappointed, Sales replied, "Good God, no. I really think I've been there long enough."

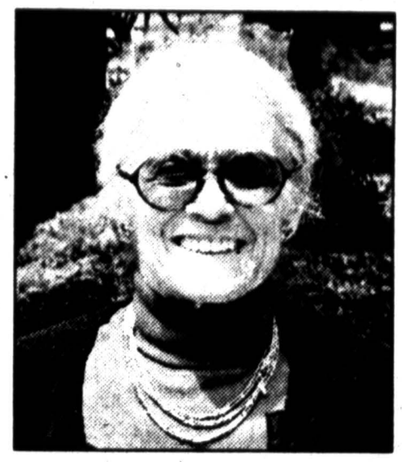
Sales praised her successor as someone who "will bring a great deal of credibility to the preservation movement.

"(She's) a great gift to us," Sales said. "I couldn't be more happy to step down."

Last March, Sales' position on the historic committee became the subject of city debate when former City Councilman Bob Fischer asked the council to consider removing Sales.

Fischer said Sales had a conflict of interest because she served as head of a private, non-profit group that had extensive dealings with the city's own historic preservation committee, which she also chaired.

(At that time, city officials didn't find that Sales had a "technical conflict" because she earned no salary from any of her historic preservation jobs.)



PINE CONE FILE

Enid Sales

And the retiring councilman later backed down, explaining that he didn't want to mar the last full council meeting of his 12-year tenure with any unpleasantness.

In recent months, Sales and her committee have completed revisions of the historic preservation ordinance and general plan to make the two documents compatible, she said.

"I feel like I've done what I can do," she said.

Sales — who has worked on various incarnations of Carmel's historic committees for 10 years — earned a reputation as a staunch advocate of preservation.

She landed in the center of controversy last year when she secured state and federal historic status for the city-owned Sunset Center building, without city approval.

That action angered some city officials who believed that historic designation could interfere with plans to demolish Sunset and build a new theater.

Sales strongly asserted that the theater should be preserved and not torn down, and in the end, she won — but only because the project proved to be too expensive.

Now that she's leaving her city duties behind, Sales still plans to active in the preservation movement in Carmel. She will focus on the non-profit Carmel Preservation Foundation. "We have great plans for that," she said.

Sales' last meeting as chairwoman of the city committee will be Sept. 15. She admitted that after 10 years of public service, she's "a mite tired."

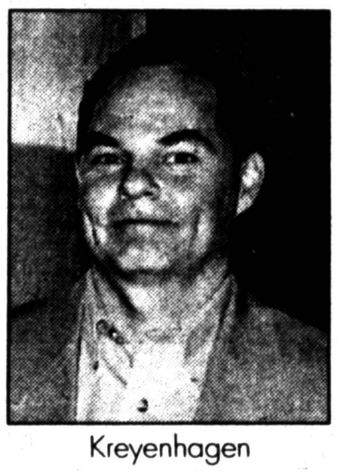
prosecution of him and Whitaker for the marijuana that was found at their home on Lobos Street in Carmel-by-the-Sea in a July 8 raid by Monterey County sheriff deputies. The raid came after a Carmel police officer received a tip that marijuana was being grown at the home that Kreyenhagen and Whitaker have rented for five years.



Kreyenhagen

According to official reports, 45 plants were found growing in the home's back yard, bagged marijuana was found in the bedroom, and dried marijuana was found in the garage.

After charges were brought against her, Whitaker took a leave of absence from her position on the Carmel Planning Commission, where she had gained a reputation as a stickler for the rules. Among other things, she voted to require one family to replace $25,000 worth of windows they had installed because the windows did not have painted wood exteriors and voted not to allow a Carmel coffee shop to add soup and salad to its menu. Ironically, she was the lone vote against a wine shop and tasting room in Carmel Plaza, saying it might turn into a wine bar.

Whitaker has been replaced by "interim commissioner" Eugene Hammond. But she has not ruled out the possibility that she may try to reclaim her seat.

"Her behavior sets a very bad example for young people, and of course she should just apologize and resign," one prominent Carmel businessman said this week.

But Whitaker's only statement since her no contest plea indicated that she sees herself as someone who has been mistreated. "I sincerely hope that the way in which this whole situation has been handled will not discourage people from being willing to serve their communities," she said in response to questions from The Pine Cone.

An investigator who interviewed Kreyenhagen after the raid quoted him as saying Whitaker knew about the marijuana crop but that he was responsible for it. Whitaker "only smoked the marijuana," Kreyenhagen said, according to the investigator.

But Whitaker has declined to answer any questions about the marijuana and her involvement in growing, processing, or using it.

SENIOR LIVING

Better care for seniors promised after companies join forces

By PAUL MILLER

MYLES WILLIAMS likes to brag about the great food and spirited activities at the Carmel Inn for Seniors on San Carlos Street in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

"I can't tell you how many times I've had a worried family member come to me with the question, 'Is it wrong to put Grandma in a home?'" says Williams, who's owned the inn since 1981. "But two weeks after she's moved in they see how happy Grandma is and they say, 'Why didn't I do this years ago?'"

Meg Connors also gets a lot of satisfaction out of her company that cares for seniors in their own homes, Victorian Home Care, which she started in 1979. "You do something not only for the elderly of the community but also for their children and their grandchildren and you can't help but feel good about what you do," Connors says. She also owns another company that provides residential care in three small facilities.

Connors and Williams say their companies have had the same goal — providing top-notch care for the elderly of the Monterey Peninsula — even though their clients had very different needs.

This summer they announced a "joint operation agreement" to provide a wide range of services to the elderly under one management umbrella, simplifying the choices available for elderly people as their health declines in later years.

Connors says many seniors start out needing help in their own home. Victorian Home Care assigns each client a care manager who supervises whatever assistance and care each senior needs — bathing, cooking, help with medication, dealing with family concerns, etc.

Myles Williams joins two of his clients in the garden of the Carmel Inn for Seniors. On the left is Maxine Jennings and on the right is Claire Stagnaro, who outlived four husbands. When asked what the four gentlemen had died of, she answered, "happiness."

Under the new arrangement, when a senior who is using home care is ready to move into a residential facility like the Carmel Inn for Seniors, that same care manager will go with them.

"One of our clients may enjoy several years at the Carmel Inn for Seniors, participating in the activities and enjoying their freedom," Williams says with a twinkle in his eye. "But often they get to the point where they don't want all that stimulation any more — when they're ready to move into a quieter facility like the ones Victorian Care Homes operates. Under this new agreement they can move from one facility to another with a minimum of disruption of their daily routine," he said.

"Our care managers will continue looking after a client even if they are periodically hospitalized," Connors says.

The Carmel Inn for Seniors has 27 rooms for clients, along with a dining room, an activity room, a glass-enclosed patio, and a front garden with a magnificent oak tree just off San Carlos Street.

Victorian Home Care has 300 full- and part-time employees who care for about 150 clients in their homes.

"My mother inspired me to care about the needs of the elderly and that's why I got into this business," Williams, a professional musician and part-owner of the Post Ranch Inn, says. "Nearly everyone needs help in their later years."

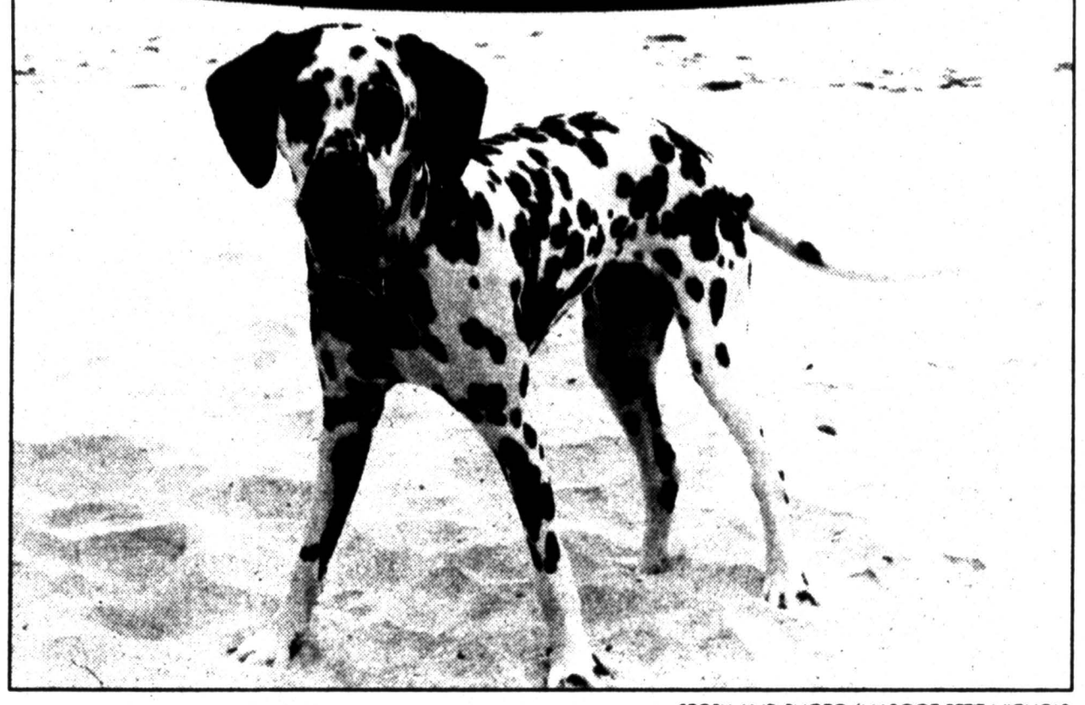
"I started Victorian Care for my own grandmother," Connors says, "and I was worried that I was taking away her independence and pride. But proper care and appropriate facilities add independence to seniors' lives."

Carmel High classes of '48, '58 reunite

A GATHERING October 4 and 5 is in the offing in Big Sur to celebrate the 50th reunion of Carmel High class of '48. The event includes a Monday morning brunch on the terrace, a barbecue steak lunch on the camp grounds, and a sit-down dinner Monday night at the lodge. The quartet that sang at the high school in 1948 is being reassembled and some of the young musicians currently attending Carmel High have been invited to perform during the picnic. If you are one of the five class members who hasn't been contacted, call Betty Plaxton Brown at 624-3198 for information.

Meanwhile, 45 graduates from the class of 1958 have signed up to attend three full days of activity planned for September 25 through 27. On Friday evening a reception will be held at the Pebble Beach home of Ted and Velma Balestreri; on Saturday, a dinner at La Playa is scheduled; and on Sunday, a catered luncheon will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Georis wine tasting room in Carmel Valley. Mike Raggett (620-0638) and Art Wilkerson are in charge.

SANDY CLAWS



STORY AND PHOTO/MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

WE SPOTTED the Dalmatian up on the Scenic Road footpath as we plodded along Carmel Beach at water's edge. Never having featured a Dalmatian, we floundered excitedly through the soft sand, sprinted up the interminable bluff steps — only to see the Dalmatian and his mom jogging rapidly away from us northward up Scenic. By the time we caught up with them, we were breathless and had to endure the puzzled stares of both Domino (the Dalmatian) and Robbie (the mom) as we attempted to wheeze out an interview.

We learned that Domino Goings-Thompson is pure Dalmatian, only 7 months old — which he quickly demonstrated by jumping up joyously against our camera in an effort to have us pick him up and cuddle him. "He thinks he's still a puppy," Mom Robbie said by way of explanation as we brushed the sand from our camera lens and sweater.

The beautiful green leash emblazoned with the words, "Cypress Inn, Carmel-by-the-Sea" — a gift from Dad Hollace, the inn's general manager — sets off Domino's browny-green eyes and velvety black ears very nicely.

As is incumbent upon all puppies, Domino is going through a variety of learning processes: He likes the beach, but hasn't ventured into the water to date; he wants to play with other beach dogs, but is as yet not conversant with doggie etiquette; and he's been gifted with a Frisbee, but lacks sufficient back yard practice to make his beach Frisbee debut.

On the plus side, he loves to eat ripe tomatoes right off Dad's garden vines; he adores the flavor of footwear, having eaten both of dad's golf shoes and one of Mom's tennies; and he has skillfully broken off all the plants in her new planter in an effort to tidy it up. Nobody can say that Domino doesn't deliver.

SENIOR LIVING

Coffee Break

By BEVERLY BORGMAN

Vacation from Paradise

"YOU LIVE in CARMEL, and you're HERE!?"

The incredulous query came from the owner of a diminutive motel in Shell Beach where we had just signed the guest register.

"Well, yes," I admitted. "We thought we'd explore the central coast a little."

Her expression seemed to say, "Another batch of crazies!" but she gave us the key anyway. Turning around in her reception area required me to back up flat against the wall so that my partner could open the door; it was that small.

Room Number 4 was a bit bigger. It was also immaculate. The pristine white wall was decorated at the ceiling with hand-painted flowers. The bathroom was equally clean, and outfitted with the usual extras — shower cap, shampoo, and believe it or not, gold faucets! There was also a coffee-maker.

Yes, there WAS a bit of highway noise with 101 only 50 yards from our door, and yes, the bed WAS a bit lumpy, but hey, you get what you pay for. The price for this tiny treasure (with AAA discount): $48.

If you're now curious as to the whereabouts of Shell Beach, it's about 15 minutes south of San Luis Obispo. And, as the locals will sadly tell you, "progress" has finally stepped in; Shell Beach has now been swallowed up by that huge metropolis, Pismo Beach.

(Old-timers may recall Pismo as Bob Hope's running gag on radio; I think he simply liked to say that word.)

As planned, we did look around the area, and had lunch in the nearby town of Arroyo Grande. Everyone seemed to know everyone else at the Village Café on the main drag. A hamburger was $3.25.

Decor succeeded all too well

Pismo Beach itself is still a funky little beach town with arcades and chowder joints. Uncertain about where to risk dinner, we opted for the local Marie Callendar's where the "decor," designed to resemble a waterfront warehouse, had succeeded all too well. The only thing missing was rats running across the floor.

A young hostess told us the wait for a table would be about 15 minutes. Not wanting to join the disconsolate group waiting in this dark and drafty foyer, we asked directions to the bar. The unexpected reply? "You can go next door to Trader Nick's; they have a bar." Next door? Trader Nick's?

We chose instead to follow the advice of our lunch-time waitress, and had a very satisfactory Chinese dinner up the road at a little place called Mei's.

The second and third nights of our little getaway were about as different from Shell Beach as you can get. We stayed in Santa Barbara where we had a "suite" — spacious living room and bedroom, two TVs, two phones, better furniture than ours at home, and a menu from which to choose the next day's complimentary breakfast — "cooked to order"!

"Motel" seems an inadequate word for the several handsome buildings of Pacifica Suites, all completely soundproofed, and situated on the grounds of an old estate. A regal Victorian house, built in 1880 and sheltered by trees probably planted at the same time, adds to the charm.

Naturally, coming from Carmel we expected to pay through the nose for such an accommodation. The price? $121 per day.

Where DO you go . . .

So you see, in answer to the question, "Where DO you go for vacation when you live in paradise?", we've worked out some strategies. None quite so remarkable, however, as the approach devised by a certain couple from Pebble Beach who shall remain nameless.

When things get too hectic in the Del Monte Forest, they hop in the car and drive over to their beach house on Scenic Road — in Carmel!

And about that pot . . .

From a very personal point of view, I truly don't care if the former chair of the Carmel Planning Commission smoked pot or not. But as someone residing in the same general neighborhood, I sure wish she'd keep up that front yard a little better. As a renter, she gives a black eye to ALL renters who take responsibility for the properties they occupy.

Search for missing persons aided by new Trak System

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

IN THE wake of the disappearance of 13-year-old Christina Williams of Seaside, the Carmel Police Department received a state-of-the-art system to track missing children and adults.

The $7,416 Trak System was paid for with the help of a grant from the non-profit Koret Foundation in San Francisco and an anonymous donor.

The Trak System is designed to instantly transmit clear, enhanced photos of missing people (or suspects) to any other agencies that have the system in place.

The system will be especially helpful in Carmel to locate at-risk seniors.

"If someone walked away from one of our senior homes this way we could get a color photo off to all police departments much faster than we could through conventional methods," said Carmel Police Chief Don Fuselier.

Vendor wants second chance in musical chair T-shirt game

By TAMARA GRIPPI

AFTER RECEIVING the latest warning letter from the City of Carmel to stop selling too many T-shirts or face the threat of losing his business license, Carmel Travel Wear owner Anthony Lucido responded in an unusual way: he turned around and asked the planning commission for just what he wanted — permission to sell more shirts.

Anthony Lucido hopes to sell still more T-shirts at Travel Wear. The planning commission is threatening to yank his business license.

Lucido readily admits that he's not abiding by the 10-percent limit on T-shirts because he says he's been treated unfairly by the city. And so, two years after the planning commission turned down Lucido's request to open a souvenir clothing store across the street from the store he had just closed, he's appealing to the commission again.

However, Carmel Planning Director Brian Roseth is advising the commission not to reopen a chapter that the city has already closed.

The commission will have to decide whether it wants to keep the souvenir limit at 10 shops as it is now or go back to the way things were in 1996 when Lucido's shop was one of 11, Roseth said.

Musical chairs

Lucido's request marks the second time that the planning commission will address the "musical chair syndrome" for stores that are limited to a certain number.

Lucido explains that he already had a use permit to operate his "Fashion Store" with 90-percent "name drop apparel" back in 1996. He wanted to give up that permit in order to obtain another one for his new store. He said he was shocked when the planning commission turned him down.

"There was no way I would have abandoned my T-shirt permit at my Fashion Store if I wasn't misled that it was perfectly obtainable to get a new permit," Lucido said.

"The commission did struggle with that issue," Roseth said. "One of the things debated in 1996 was this lack of certainty. Without the certainty that the old space would be occupied by a non T-shirt use, the commission was fearful that they might be creating a new space."

Ironically, Concepts — a combination jewelry and arts and crafts store that ran into trouble with the city earlier this year over the numeric cap on jewelry stores — was allowed to open in Lucido's space as determined at the very same meeting in 1996.

Lucido's lawyer, Tom Nash, argues that the city used a double standard by allowing Concepts to keep its jewelry use permit and not offering the same privilege to Carmel Travel Wear.

However, Roseth pointed out a subtle difference between the two cases: Concepts held the master lease on its former space at the time. As it turned out afterwards, Concepts' owners Doug and Jackie Steakley later lost control of the master lease and another jewelry store opened there, bumping Concepts out of the jewelry ranks.

For Lucido, at least one thing has changed since 1996 — enough time has elapsed so that his former space has lost the souvenir use. Therefore, the planning commission need not worry that a t-shirt store will open there.

Lucido's appeal will be heard at the planning commissioner's next meeting Sept. 9. At that time, they will consider an appeal by the Pebble Beach Co. which wants to open a clothing store featuring the Pebble Beach emblem in the old Dick Bruhn building on Ocean and San Carlos.

McPherson says state budget a big success for district

$2.1M for pitch canker research, $6.1M for coastal land acquisitions

By PAUL MILLER

WHEN THE gavel fell on the legislature's 1997-1998 session late Monday night, State Senator Bruce McPherson, whose district stretches from Big Sur to Santa Cruz, was one happy camper.

"There were some top priorities that I had and they were all approved," said a beaming McPherson, whose term runs to the year 2000.

Included are several critical environmental and open space appropriations:

■ $2.1 million over six years for pitch canker research

■ $5 million to help buy the 7,000-acre Coast Dairy property along Highway 1 around the tiny town of Davenport in Santa Cruz County

■ $1 million for another piece of undeveloped coastal pasture near Santa Cruz

■ $100,000 for land acquisitions in the city of Monterey.

According to McPherson, the Coast Dairy is one of three large, unprotected properties between San Francisco and the Mexican border and includes six major beaches and more than seven miles of coastline.

McPherson was joined by Assemblyman Fred Keeley in a bipartisan effort to allocate some of the state's $4.4 billion budget surplus for the land, which also includes redwoods, oak forests, wetlands, endangered species and agricultural land.

The state's $5 million completes the funding for purchase of the property, which had a September 30 deadline, and is in addition to $20 million contributed by the David and Lucille Packard Foundation, plus money chipped in by the Save the Redwoods League and other private donors.

The land, which McPherson called, "awe-inspiring and breathtaking," is owned by a Swiss company.

The pitch canker money will be allocated to the Department of Forestry and Fire to contain the killer tree fungus that is believed to have already infected most Monterey pines in the Monterey Peninsula and which experts say will probably kill 85 percent of them.

The disease is fatal not only to Monterey pines but also to Douglas fir and at least eight other conifer species. So far, it has spread to 17 counties and could reach the Sierra Nevada.

"This research will be especially important to the people of Carmel, who don't want to lose their native forest," McPherson said.

He also expressed deep satisfaction with the success of the state's class reduction program, which over the last two years has cut class sizes in grades K through 3 from an average of nearly 30 to about 20 students.

McPherson

This year's budget includes an $89 million appropriation to cut class sizes for ninth grade math and English students.

Also appropriated in Sacramento this year were:

■ $500,000 for the National Steinbeck Center, to pay for museum programs, education and community outreach

■ $14.8 million for the UC Santa Cruz Natural Science Building

■ $5 million for repairs to the Watsonville Hospital

The state budget for the 1998 fiscal year is $76.9 billion. There is a surplus of $4.2 billion in the budget.

McPherson said he was disappointed that no income tax cut was passed this year.

But the state's car tax was cut by 25 percent, and the dependent tax credit was increased from $68 to $253 per dependent.

Partner in AT&T golf ticket scam jailed

By KIRSTIE WILDE

JUDGE ROBERT Moody has sentenced Anthony Barbosa to serve 270 days in the Monterey County jail for selling more than $5,460 in counterfeit tickets to the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am charity golf tournament earlier this year.

Barbosa's partner, Jameel Alhassan, is already serving a one-year jail sentence.

The two Oakland men were arrested February 1 in a Marina satellite parking lot as they sold the phony tickets to unsuspecting golf fans. They were caught with 300 unsold counterfeits in their possession.

As a condition of his three-year probation, Barbosa must repay the money he scammed from the charity golf tournament and pay a $2,000 fine to the state.

Retiring fire chief recalls the camaraderie of Mid Valley volunteers

By TAMARA GRIPPI

AFTER A 31-year career of battling blazes, trudging through flood waters and leading midnight evacuations, Mid Carmel Valley Fire Chief Gary Carmichael has chosen to enter a slightly less hazardous occupation — computer programming.

Carmichael is retiring this month after serving 12 years as chief of the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Protection District. The fire chief is moving to San Bernardino County to take up his new career.

While the switch may seem like quite a jump, it all makes sense to Carmichael, who was in charge of setting up a computer network system at the fire station.

In his years at Mid Valley, Carmichael has led his crews through four major disasters, including the floods of 1995. "Unfortunately, Mother Nature never comes at you the same way each time," he explained.

He remembers being on duty 24 hours a day and "grabbing cat naps sitting in my car in the pouring rain."

While the chief may not miss the sleep deprivation, the camaraderie of the volunteer fire station will be something that's harder for him to give up.

"The volunteer fire fighter is probably the last true volunteer in the United States," Carmichael said. "They give their whole lives to the department."

Gary Carmichael, chief of the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Protection District for 12 years, is moving to San Bernardino County where he will take up a new career in computer programming.

Carmichael chuckles that he hasn't spent a Tuesday night at home for 22 years: that's training night at the station.

The chief likes the way the 30 volunteers and nine full-time fire fighters inspire and challenge each other at Mid Valley.

"The pride of the individuals is contagious," he said. "They all rise together."

Carmichael — who began as a volunteer fire fighter in San Clemente in 1967 — has seen many changes in fire departments over the years.

In the old days, "if it wasn't red or hot, you didn't call us," he explained. Now fire departments respond to every medical emergency, not to mention floods and natural disasters.

The chief sees a downside to the increased responsibilities: All the additional training makes it harder for volunteers to qualify. "If we expand at the rate we have, in the next 30 years we won't have a volunteer fire department," he explained.

And he hopes that the future will have a place for volunteer fire departments, where locals are ready to run out in the middle of the night with no pay, "simply for the love of it."

Carmel Police catch suspect who shed his clothing on the run

By TAMARA GRIPPI

WITH THE help of some well-placed clues and an old fashioned hunch, the Carmel Police managed to nab a suspect in Monterey just an hour after he reportedly burglarized a Carmel business.

Carmel Lt. Bill Uretsky tracked down Dewayne Jennings, 39, of Seaside at about 1 p.m. August 28 on Cass Street, after he allegedly walked out of a Carmel gift shop with $332.

At 11:50 a.m. that day, the owner of At Home on Fifth Avenue between San Carlos and Dolores, walked down to her basement office to find a stranger exiting.

When she asked him what he was doing in her office, he reportedly said, "I'm looking for the bathroom to the Hog's Breath," and then walked out.

The business owner then realized that someone had gone through an unlocked safe. She noted that three currency bags were missing.

After the empty deposit bags were found in the restroom at Devendorf Park, Uretsky surmised that the suspect may have caught a bus. Police checked with Monterey-Salinas Transit and discovered that someone fitting the suspect's description had gotten off the bus at Del Monte Plaza.

Uretsky found a man at the shopping center who matched the description except that he was wearing different clothing.

After searching for other suspects, Uretsky found the man again, this time on Cass Street. The man most likely shed his outfit somewhere along the way from Carmel to Monterey, said Carmel Detective Sgt. Pete Poitras. The witness came down and positively identified the man who had been in her store, according to police. The $332 was found in Jennings' pocket, said Poitras.

Jennings was cited and later released. He will be charged with one count of petty theft, Poitras said.

OPINION

Editorial

Flush times make tough choices easier

CALIFORNIA'S BOOMING economy is benefiting many more people than just thousands of newly-minted millionaires in Silicon Valley and the people who sell them mansions in Pebble Beach.

It's also producing a windfall for the state's environment by pouring a great deal of new tax revenues into state coffers, creating a colossal budget surplus of more than $4 billion.

With all that money sitting around just waiting to be spent, politicians are naturally tempted to allocate a little to pet projects here and there — especially ones that will score them points with the voters back home.

This year's $76.9 billion budget undoubtedly has plenty of pork in it. But at the same time, a big budget surplus opens the door for worthwhile projects to get funded that otherwise wouldn't get a dime.

The $6 million in this year's budget to preserve coastal land north of Santa Cruz is a good example of this. The public no doubt supports acquisition of scenic coastal land as permanent open space. But in normal years such acquisitions often fail to get funding because the public also wants its tax money spent on other needs — education, health care, jobs — that seem more urgent.

The Coast Dairy, for example, comprises 7,000 acres of California's most scenic and environmentally sensitive land, located along both sides of Highway 1 North of Santa Cruz.

During the deep recession that hit the state in the early 1990s, the idea of acquiring such a piece of property would probably have gotten lip service, and not much else, in Sacramento.

This year, a bipartisan effort that included Fred Keeley, Bruce McPherson and Governor Peter Wilson produced an agreement for the state to spend $5 million to help acquire the land.

McPherson's office says he lobbied the Governor "daily" in an attempt to get funding for the property approved.

"There is no better time," McPherson said, "considering our current budget windfall, to protect one of our most precious natural resources."

Governor Wilson responded by approving the appropriation, calling the money "a prudent and wise investment to protect this land for all future generations."

Every project that got money in this year's budget has its ardent defenders. Each $1 that flows from Sacramento seems pretty important to the person or institution that receives it.

But some dollars are spent in ways that yield permanent benefits, and public purchase of land for open space is one of them.

In the decades to come, tourists, environmentalists and wilderness lovers will have reason to thank the legislature, the governor — and California's booming economy — for preserving the Coast Dairy.

No 'evidence of candor'

Dear Editor:

I am not as enthusiastic about Leon Panetta as the editorial writer for The Pine Cone (Aug. 21). Perhaps this is a "feeler" on behalf of Mr. Panetta to test the waters. Does he wish to return to the Republican Party? Is he trying to disassociate himself from Bill, Hillary, Carville, Begala, Lindsey, Ickes, Hubbell, Nussbaum, Wm. Kennedy, Watkins, Reno, Ron Brown, Podesta, Davis, Lewis among others?

Doesn't Mr. Panetta know that Mr. Nussbaum had prevented the FBI and Secret Service from entering or sealing off the office of Vince Foster at the time of his death? Only chosen members of the administration audited the contents of Mr. Foster's office. Alarm bells were ringing that early in this administration for those who would hear.

Had the FBI and Secret Service insisted on proper legal procedures in July, 1993, and had honorable, responsible statesmen of both parties spoken up, this entire Clinton ordeal could have been prevented. We would have known the truth about our imperial President and his enablers at the beginning of his administration.

For a sophisticated politician, Mr. Panetta seems to be a strangely incurious, unquestioning, naive man. Couldn't he at least have spoken up and defended the Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr and our precious judicial system from the rantings and bashings of the Clinton thugs and apologists?

Unfortunately, I do not see any evidence of Mr. Panetta's vaunted candor in this ugly mess. By the way, who is the anonymous writer of your Aug. 21 editorial?

Kay Thomas, Carmel

Pirates and Padres look to fill vacant MTAL football throne

By JERRY STEWART

WITH THE departure of Nebraska-like football powerhouse Palma High to the Monterey Bay League, the gates of gridiron opportunity have swung wide open for both Carmel High and Robert Louis Stevenson.

For the first time in recent memory, there will be a new king of the MTAL, and beginning Sept. 5 at the league jamboree in Pacific Grove, each squad will be striving for the throne.

Last year, with a corps of relatively young players, Carmel finished 2-8. But this year experience will be on the Padres' side as the squad features 15 returning starters.

"With Palma gone the league will be more competitive," said second year head coach David Stainbrook. "And we think we can be real competitive. We're hoping this is the turnaround year for us."

With quarterback Nason Campbell, wide receiver Jon Lyon, tailback Chris Paquin, All-MTAL wideout Niyago Fields and an offensive line that averages 250 pounds per player, the Padres should have no problems scoring, and that's exactly why the Padres are concentrating their pre-season efforts on shoring up the defense.

"We're experimenting with some different things on each side of the ball, but we're really trying to focus on playing some good defense," Stainbrook said.

Anchoring the defense will be senior defensive tackle Steven Moore, linebacker Eddie Canadas and free safety Tony Velasquez.

Looking at the schedule, Stainbrook said the Padres Sept. 12 opening game against Harbor could be critical to his squad's success.

"Last year we lost a game early on to Harbor that we should have won," said Stainbrook. "So a win this year is crucial to get momentum going for us right off the bat."

'With the dominant team gone, everyone in league will have a shot at the title. There's enough guys on this team that know what it takes to win.'

— Jeff Young
RLS head coach

Trying to get back to CCS

After tasting its first-ever Central Coast Section playoff victory in the quarterfinals last year against Pioneer High, Stevenson wants more. But many key players have left the building.

MTAL Back of the Year Bubba Beyah, defensive back Erik Hebert, linemen Joe Rotter and Judah Padilla and quarterback Tommy Brant were all lost to graduation in June, leaving big shoes to fill. But Pirate head coach Jeff Young feels his 1998 squad has the mentality to move on and create more success.

"With the dominant team [Palma] gone, everyone in league will have a shot at the title," said Young. "There's enough guys on this team that know what it takes to win."

Returning to the field with the CCS experience under their belts and expected to lead the team this season are team co-captains Sal Palma and Paul Simonsen, Ryan Kitigawa and Brian Boitano, who all will be featured on both sides of the ball.

Simonsen, who received All-MTAL honors last year as a speedy tailback and defensive back, will be joined in the offensive backfield by Kitigawa, who also is sparingly used at defensive back.

Sal Palma, who is still recuperating from a knee injury, is expected to be the starting quarterback, and sophomore Anthony Arger, whom Young said has "shown a lot of potential," will be available as a backup.

Just like last year, Stevenson will try to run through and over its opponents with a bruising ground game — which means offensive linemen Ryan Aeschliman, Robert Walsh, Robby Blagg and David English will be busy.

"All of these guys have the experience and desire and they're pushing others in to the right frame of mind," said Young. "So we've got a great base to start us in the right direction."

Sports Wrap-up

IN THE PAINT: Riding on a scholarship, 20-year-old former CHS cager and MTAL scoring champ Ryan Sanchez will join the defending Division II national champion UC Davis basketball squad this fall.

The 6'2" shooting guard recently played for Monterey Peninsula College and was also named defensive player of the year while at Carmel.

Speedy Stevenson tailback Paul Simonsen (32), who helped the Pirates run to their first ever CCS win last year, will again be a focal point of the Pirates' attack.

Al Smith's
"Carmel Legends"
No. 15

If you didn't know it was there, you might easily pass by the GREAT WALL OF CARMEL. It's a Carmel stone monument, 2 1/2 feet wide and slightly higher than a man's head, that completely encloses an entire block. 4th and 5th Avenues are on north and south, Guadalupe on the east, Santa Rita on the west. All along the top of the wall are jagged stones set on edge, a distressing sadistic touch. The wall dates from 1925, when a man named Smith (from Southern California) caused it to be built by two stone masons who spent 3 year's on the project. He planned a major estate on the property, but went no further than a caretaker's cottage, elaborate walks, patios, pools, and a giant BBQ pit before his interests led him to a farm in the lower Carmel Valley and his block was sold. He headed back south, and today there are many small lots and private homes inside the enclosure. A few gateways have been broken through, and here and there a growing pine tree is winning the war of the wall. Start at Guadalupe and 4th where you'll find the main gate, a forbidding iron structure with the initial "S" set in small stones beside it, then walk around this interesting block...you'll enjoy it. You might even hear the hoof beats of the horse who haunts the great wall!

✓ Carmel Outdoor Art Festival arrives this weekend

"FARMER'S MARKET on Alvarado Street" (right), an original painting by Erhard Lux, is typical of the discoveries that await the Carmel Outdoor Art Festival.

In its ninth year, the festival is planned for 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 5 and 6, at Sunset Center. The center is on San Carlos at Ninth in downtown Carmel.

In addition to a wealth of artwork, the festival includes food and music. Admission is free.

✓ Carmel Valley Gospel Festival promises sweet sounds, food and swimming

THE COMMUNITY center at 25 Ford Road, located just off Carmel Valley Road in Carmel Valley Village, provides the setting for the Sixth Annual Carmel Valley Gospel Festival. Admission is free to the festival, set 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, Sept. 7.

The day's lineup includes saxophonist Jonno, Bev Rivers and Breakfree (rhythm and blues), Higher Vision, Kenon Chen, Bard Sherman, Temple of Philadelphia Youth Choir and the Good News Blues.

Barbecue will be available throughout the day for $3. There will also be activities organized for children and swimming at the community center pool. Information: 625-3492.

✓ Sydney Welsh Choir plans Carmel stop

LAUNCHED IN 1978 as an extension of the Sydney Rugby Club, the Sydney Welsh Choir travels to Carmel on Friday, Sept. 4. Their 7:30 p.m. concert, subtitled "Bach to Bacharach," will be presented in the Carmel Mission Basilica. The ensemble will sing a variety of music, including pieces in the Welsh language. The concert is sponsored by the Welsh American Society of Northern California.

Tickets are $10 at the door. Information: 624-8628

ALWAYS . . . PATSY CLINE

The Wharf Theatre transforms into the Grand Ole Opry for this Western Stage production that just completed a sold-out run in Salinas.

The show is an intimate look behind the country music legend, and features a live band and more than 20 country standards, including Patsy Cline's hits.

Show time is 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays at the theater, located at the end of Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. Tickets are $18 general, $16 students and seniors, $12 or Hartnell students and $10 for children. 375-2111 or 755-6816.

ANTONY & CLEOPATRA

A new, shortened adaptation of Shakespeare's tragic romance bows Saturday, Sept. 5 at the Golden Bough Theatre. The Pacific Repertory Theatre production is directed by Stephen Moorer and features John Farmenesh-Bocca and MaryAnn Schaupp-Rousseau in the title roles.

A half-price preview will be staged at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 4. Regular performances are at 7:30 p.m. Saturday and 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 5-6 at the theater, located on Monte Verde between 8th and 9th, Carmel. Tickets are $15 adults, $10 children, seniors, military and teachers and $5 for Monterey Peninsula high school students. 622-0100.

COLLECTED STORIES

Finalist for the 1997 Pulitzer Prize, "Collected Stories" focuses on a complicated six-year relationship between two women — one a successful short story writer, the other her protégée. It is written by Donald Margulies.

Conrad Selvig directs Neva Hahns and Jessamay Howell in this MPC Players production. It plays 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 5 p.m. Sundays through Sept. 27 at Cherry Hall, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel.

Tickets are $12 general, $10 for students and seniors. Reservations: 646-9478.

THE GHOST OF THE OZARKS

A classic melodrama that became the inspiration for the John Wayne movie, "Shepherd of the Hills," "Ghost of the Ozarks" continues its run at California's First Theatre.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday at the theater, located at Scott and Pacific streets in Monterey. The Troupers of the Gold Ghost will present their Olio (or after-show) as well. For reservations, call 375-4916 during office hours: 1 to 7 p.m. Wednesdays, 1 to 7:30 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays.

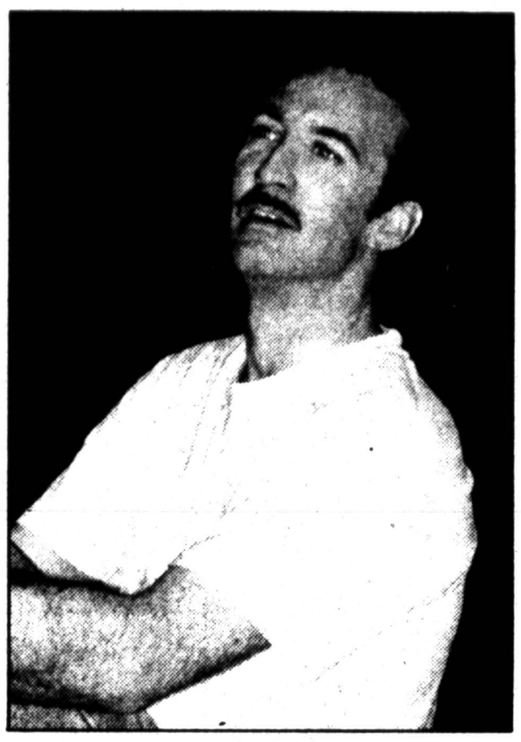
'Shimmer': A tender triumph

By ERIN GAFILL
and TOM BIRMINGHAM



Stephen Moorer brings to life Johnny, as well as other characters in John O'Keefe's autobiographical 'Shimmer.'

IN PACIFIC Repertory Theatre's production of John O'Keefe's autobiographical "Shimmer," a one-man exorcism of a turbulent adolescence, Stephen Moorer shines as "Johnny."

When the lights come up on an empty stage, we see a man clothed simply in jeans, white t-shirt and black high tops, his back to the audience. Moorer's voice floats out like cream. "This story," he begins, "is true."

Shifting on a dime between diverse characterizations, Moorer's kinetic, nonstop performance glides from middle age to puberty and back again. Reflecting on the last juvenile institution in which he was placed, and from which he escaped just shy of his 16th birthday, "Johnny" engages the audience with easy humor even as he lifts the veil to expose one horror after another.

Unflinching compassion

Alternately playing Johnny, Johnny's best friend Welch, the school-yard bully and his sidekick, and the looming and fearsome lock-up patron, Moorer manifests both frailty and menace — with unflinching compassion.

THEATER REVIEW

Here are characters who achieve intimacy through brutal means. In one scene, "Johnny" takes a knock-out punch as though it were a caress, transcending the violence.

It is a galvanizing performance, transporting us into the beautiful black nights of childhood full of cricket calls and terrible thirsts. Moorer makes us taste the water as sweet as milk, smell the hay dust, feel the sweat. In his final break for freedom, he reveals — and revels in — both utter fear and utter joy.

John O'Keefe's gorgeous writing maps the geography of childhood with an uncanny mastery of sensory detail. Born in Iowa, O'Keefe was reared in Catholic orphanages and state juvenile homes throughout the Midwest. His words ring with authenticity.

Director John Rousseau navigates this journey through loss and longing with restraint, opting for vulnerability over brute force. In addition to his technical directorship of all Pacific Rep pro-

THE BOOKSHELF

Nearby publisher hosts multi-generational readings

A NEW SOFTCOVER anthology is just out, by Papier-Mache Press of Watsonville — a nearby publishing house producing some very fine hardbacks as well as softcover books.

By Margot Petit Nichols

"Generation to Generation: Reflections on Friendships Between Young and Old" continues a theme that this publisher is fond of — books on growing older, books on women, books on old and young together.

A program featuring dramatic readings from the book — to which you are invited (RSVP 763-1420) — is combined with an old-fashioned tea party from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. on national grandparents' day, Sunday, September 13 at 829 Bay Ave., Capitola. The program commences at 2:30.

Monterey poet Jenifer Lagier, who has read her poems here at The Cherry Foundation for the Arts, is represented in the anthology with her quite excellent poem, "Grandma at Markleeville," from which the following is extracted: "Despite the living bridge of her son, the man I call father, she and I have never connected and remain total strangers. We sit back at the quiet campsite, testing the waters by casting bright spinners of family stories."

Fifty-seven essays, poems and photographs, all personal reflections to do with relationships across generations — of gained knowledge and lost wisdom — make up this 204-page anthology edited by Sandra Martz and Shirley Coe. It sells for $10.95 at local bookstores.

"A COLLOQUIUM ON CREATIVITY" with local author Robert Campbell takes place Saturday, September 5 at The Carl Cherry Center for the Arts here in Carmel. Campbell, an Edgar Award-winning mystery/crime novelist, screenwriter and playwright, will guide workshop participants through an examination of a writer's primary medium: Which is one's primary medium? How can one come closer to it in one's writing? Is medium a matter of style, or something deeper? The workshop will be held from 10 a.m to 4 p.m. in the Cherry Gallery at the center, corner of Fourth and Guadalupe, Carmel. The workshop fee of $60 includes a vegetarian lunch. For reservations, call 624-7491.

THE POWER OF INTUITION will be discussed by Dr. James Wanless, author of "Strategic Intuition for the 21st Century," 7:30 to 8 p.m. on Tuesday, September 8, at The Thunderbird Bookshop, The Barnyard Shopping Village. Free. For information, call 624-1803.

TWO POETS will appear at The Thunderbird Bookshop, 3600 The Barnyard, Carmel, presented by the National Writers Union Local 7 at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, September 11. The poets are David Swanger, professor of Creative Writing at UCSC who has won a fellowship in poetry from the National Endowment for the Arts; and George Lober, who teaches at both MPC and NPS, and who won the national Ruth Cable Memorial Prize for Poetry. Admission is $5. Information: 684-0854.

SANDRA ALCOSSER, winner of the 1998 Academy of American Poets' James Laughlin Award, will read her poetry at 8 p.m., Friday, September 11 in Room 14B, Sunset Center, Carmel. The reading is sponsored by Robinson Jeffers Tor House Foundation. Admission is $7. Call 624-5725 for information.

Sandra Alcosser

ASHLEY RAMSDEN, visiting English storyteller, will be telling stories for grownups in the Barnyard Community Room, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Friday, September 4. Admission is $8. He will tell stories for children, 6 years and older, at 4 p.m. on Sunday, September 6 in the same room. Admission is $5. For information, call 624-1803. Ashley will be doing another adult storytelling at 7 p.m. on Thursday, September 10 at the Monterey Public Library. There will be a $5 fee or one ticket free with a valid MPL card.

Village Verse

KISS BLOWN THROUGH A WINDOW

Looking up and out the window
there you were and suddenly you blew me a kiss.

I reacted with surprise
I really was . . .
I smiled and touched my cheek.

I sat there
no longer reading the paper watching you walk away.

Past the flagpole
and down the hill
in your black dress and hat.

Once, a skinny kid I worked with said,
"What does it mean . . .
when a girl kisses you and gets off a bus?"

I remember that I laughed at him. I laughed and said,
"What do you THINK it means, Nick?"

The sky is blue
the month is May.
What does it mean, when a woman blows a kiss and walks away?

The JAZZ STORE is located at 236 Crossroads Blvd.• Carmel, California in the Crossroads Shopping Center. All events begin at 7:30 pm and performers play two sets. Standard admission is $25 per person. Some concert admissions are higher. Students (under 18) 1/2 price. Admission covers both sets. For reservations call (408) 624-6432 VISA/MC/American Express accepted. Free parking.

Karrin Allyson Trio — Thurs. Sept. 10

The wonderful Karrin Allyson from Kansas City is a vocalist you do not want to miss. Allyson is a superb musician with great taste and versatility. Her repertoire includes something for everyone: sambas, jazz and pop standards, blues and a scat style influenced by Ella Fitzgerald. Her vocal range and sparkling personality combine to create a very memorable experience for the audience. Her most recent release on Concord Jazz is entitled Daydream.

Jessica Williams Trio — Thurs. Sept. 17

A Jazz Store favorite, pianist Jessica Williams will be celebrating the release of Joyful Sorrow, her new CD on the Blackhawk label. Recorded in December 1996 at the Jazz Sore, it is a tribute to Bill Evans. Williams is a masterful pianist on her own terms, and can play all styles of piano jazz. Dave Brubeck has called Williams the "best improvising pianist playing today." Don't miss what promises to be a very special evening!

David Friesen & Uwe Kropinski — Sat. Sept. 26

This duet of brass virtuoso David Friesen and master guitarist Uwe Kropinski has been playing together since they met in 1987. Both Friesen and Kropinski have the ability and imagination to find the new ways of expressing new ideas on their instruments, but always with high regard for musical integrity Their show at the Jazz Store in 1996 left the audience impressed at their technical mastery of their instruments, and touched by the power and depth of music. They have recorded Departure on Global Pacific records, featuring original compositions by both of them.

Weber Iago — Sat. Oct. 3

Brazilian pianist and composer Weber Iago (formerly Drummond) will be making a live recording during his solo performance at the Jazz Store. His music blends traditional Brazilian rhythms with modern jazz harmonies and a good touch of classicism. His past performances at the Jazz Store have always been filled with exciting technique, interesting selections, and great musicianship. He has performed with Gilberto Gil, Herbie Hancock, Wayne Shorter, Claudia Villela and many others.

UPCOMING EVENTS:

- Saturday Oct 10 ➤ Phil Markowitz Trio
- Saturday Oct 17 ➤ Stephanie Crawford
- Saturday Oct 24 ➤ Claudia Villela Trio
- Saturday Oct 31 ➤ Andy Bey
- Saturday Nov 7 ➤ Mary Stallings

OF MICE AND MEN

By popular demand, John Steinbeck's novel comes to life in this Unicorn Theatre interpretation directed by Carey Crockett.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 7 p.m. Sundays until Sept. 13 at the Hoffman Playhouse, 320 Hoffman (at Lighthouse) in New Monterey.

Tickets are $15 general, $12 students and seniors, group discounts available. 649-0259.

PINOCCHIO

Family Fantasy Theatre stages a comical production for children of the classic "Pinocchio." Show time is 2 and 4 p.m. Saturdays and 3 p.m. Sundays through Sept. 12 at the Hoffman Playhouse, 320 Hoffman (at Lighthouse) in New Monterey.

All tickets are $5, and reservations are advised. Call 649-0259.

SHIMMER

Reviewed on page 3B.

The Central Coast premiere run of "Shimmer" continues at 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 6 in the Circle Theatre at the Golden Bough, Casanova between 8th and 9th, Carmel. Tickets are $15 for adults, $10 students, seniors, military and teachers. 622-0100.

TAPPING THE GLASS

The PRT Solo Series continues with "Tapping the Glass," a one-woman show written by and starring Jeanne Wooster. The show focuses on a woman's final college year in Philadelphia, and her life centered around Dirty Frank's Bar. It contains strong language and content.

Curtain is at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 9 in the Circle Theatre at the Golden Bough, Casanova between 8th and 9th, Carmel. Tickets are $15 for adults, $10 students, seniors, military and teachers. 622-0100.

VIVIEN

Lamont Johnson directs MaryAnn Schaupp-Rousseau as actress Vivien Leigh, who was perhaps best-remembered as Scarlett in "Gone with the Wind." This offering of the PRT Solo Series finds Leigh in 1967, the final year of her life, reflecting on her career and treasured ghosts from her past, including Laurence Olivier, Peter Finch, Orson Welles and Clark Gable.

Curtain is at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 10, in the Circle Theatre at the Golden Bough, Casanova between 8th and 9th, Carmel. Tickets are $15 for adults, $10 students, seniors, military and teachers. 622-0100.

THE WIZARD OF OZ

Brimming with special effects, including inline "flying" skating monkeys, the musical continues at the Outdoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel.

Directed by Walt deFaria, this Pacific Repertory Theatre production takes its cues from the legendary MGM film.

"The Wizard of Oz" will be staged at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Sundays until Sept. 20.

Regular admission is $15 for adults, $10 for children and seniors. Student group rates are available. 622-0100.

'SHIMMER' . . .

ductions, Rousseau is a seasoned actor who draws from Moorer a surpassing tenderness.

Steve Judge's fluid lighting design adds a second presence to the lonely stage. It seems to fill the black void of the Circle Theater with the surroundings of a barn, a field, a detention cell, and the darkened inner corridors of a troubled boy's soul. In Erin Barlowe's deft hands, the light is like another player on the stage. And the intimacy of this space itself makes you feel as though you have spent the evening eavesdropping at a confessional.

A memory play, "Shimmer" resurrects and reinvents the past. It is the playwright's art to select where his memories begin and end and how long (and where) they dwell. It is Moorer's art that he leaves us knowing that the years from the end of the story to the beginning of the telling are as important as the tale itself; that in those years lies the work of making sense of it all.

This fall, Pacific Repertory Theatre offers "Shimmer" as one of three productions in its Solo Series. At a time when theaters are matching spectacle against massive Hollywood productions, this seems refreshing. If the emotional tenor of this show is a fair sample of the series, I wouldn't miss a single show.

WHAT'S NEW with Meg

Wine classes...collectors' cars...a lot of fall... a bit of Christmas... and more.

St. Nick's Loft

Anne, not Nan, as she was mistakenly called in this column last month (sorry, Anne!) is excited about "the season". It's already here, she says, and she and ST. NICK are ready. She hopes you'll come to the several festivals occurring at the Barnyard soon, that you'll "think Christmas" and come by ST. NICK'S LOFT! The selection has never been better & when you see this shop of unique, handcrafted items, you'll realize time is shorter than you think! Enjoy the season, the Barnyard events and remember what that smart shopper does! The Barnyard, Carmel. 622-7144.

Carmel Motoring Co.

In case you don't know about it, and in case you or someone in your family is passionate about things automobile, CARMEL MOTORING CO. has moved to the Barnyard! And you or that someone will lose your mind! You"ll find the largest selection of automobile books and fine autosport art in the area, scaled replicas of die-cast collectors' cars, specializing in historic & current racing cars, piston clocks, antiques, custom engraved license plate frames, nostalgically authentic car advertisements, original posters, art prints, No Fear shirts, jackets, ties by the tons, ETC! Barnyard, near the Peppercorn, Carmel. 626-2764; www.carmoco.com.

Anelle

Words we like to hear: The end-of-the-season-spectacular-summer-sale at both ANELLE shops (PG and Salinas) is not only going on, but getting all the more spectacular with final markdowns now of 40% to 75%! It would seem many of you enjoyed their casual summer merchandise at full price, so now's your chance to replenish those attractive tops, pants, t-shirts, jackets, sweaters, even cotton pants suits, at tremendous savings. This sale of a sale goes through Saturday the 5th – that's tomorrow – so finish reading, then rush to 566 Lighthouse, PG, or 1184 So. Main St., Salinas!!

Rancho Cellars

Everyone knows RANCHO CELLARS is the peninsula's newest attraction with its wide selection of premium wines, beers and spirits. But have you heard that starting Friday, Sept. 11 and for the following 3 Fridays, 6 to 8 pm, their Wine Academy will be teaching basic concepts of wine tasting and wine appreciation? Class 1: Learning about wine aromas, improving your scent memory; Class 2: The elements of tasting – the appearance, the "nose", wine on the palate; Class 3: Sensory evaluation of white wines; Class 4: Sensory evaluation of red wines. Whether novice or expert, one class or four, call Alpana, 625-5646 for information or to enroll. Carmel Rancho.

Prim & Proper

Remember the excitement of fall clothes, how extra good and rich they look? PRIM & PROPER has in its complete fall selection and once again you'll feel the excitement. A huge group of Gotcha Covered in denim – blazer, blouse, 5-pocket jeans, pleated pants with elastic waist, barn jacket, traditional denim jacket, long denim skirt, vest, and a duster to die for! (Nothing in this group lasts long, so hurry!). Other attractive new groups include Robert Scott and David Brooks, and wait 'til you see Sigrid Olsen's fabulous cardigans and her lavender cord pants! I mean it, hurry! 553 Lighthouse, PG. 372-5563.

Charles Belmont of THE BELMONT METHOD shows concern over who else might be living in your house beside you and your family. "Both Congress and the E.P.A", he says, "have once again determined that indoor air-pollution is the #1 environmental concern. Approximately 80% of house dust flying around is dead skin which feeds hundreds of dust mites. Nine species of these microscopic creatures can live in just one ounce of household dust!" Need he say more? Keep your carpets environmentally safe. Call THE BELMONT METHOD for your free estimate. 625-3242.

MONARCH KNITTING & QUILTS

Fall's arrived with a bang at MONARCH KNITTING & QUILTS, and I wager Joan's new chenille yarns will put your knitting needles in play! "Lusso", chenille sooo soft you want to whisper, comes in many variegated colors such as jewel tones, denim, emerald, autumn and metallic! Great scarves, vests, anything! "Mosaica" is a wrapped chenille, also soft, also variegated in combinations called crayon, blues, sunlit forest. From Japan, 100% wool, so variegated, so complex a dyeing process that every stitch is a surprise! What fun for children's knits or anyone's knits! 529 Central, PG. 647-9276.

Christine Warren's BOUTIQUE

You'll be delighted to hear that the designers of Flax have branched into sweaters. These are long and loose cardigans and crewnecks in cotton/rayon, A-line, pleated and drapey, with that wonderful, indescribable look of the clothes at CHRISTINE WARREN'S BOUTIQUE. See the new Cacahca group – "pounded" linen (a reproduction of antique French cloth) in a pants set and skirts with matching jackets. And check out the Sarah Arizona fall cotton knit sweaters with reversible skirts. Surprise after surprise here at 309 Forest, PG. (across from city hall) 655-3666.

Chatterbaux Children's Shoppe

Speaking of fall – you can imagine Ginny's CHATTERBAUX SHOPPE has all sorts of sweaters, jackets and coats for children of all ages,with very pleasant prices. And those of you with ballerinas will be delighted to hear that Ginny has received inventory of the liquidated Carmel Ballet Dance store. Capezzio and Baryshn'kov leotards and tights, tops of all kinds, adorable tutus, ballet slippers, dance bags, and who knows what else! In all sizes, as well! Interested in an English Silver Cross pram? Better arrive as soon as possible! 157 Fountain, PG. 647-8701.

catherine's

catherine has several outfits she's eager o show you, and oh, the places you'll go! In sueded rayon (soft and elegant!) beautiful three-piece outfit (tank top, matching pants and short jacket) in aubergine, also known as eggplant, well priced at under $200. A prewashed heavier weight linen pants suit in natural, with mandarin collar, full, comfortable pants, shown with stretchy top in reddish brown. (Top also in pink-ivory and slate gray, only $36.) See her whimsical sterling silver boy and girl pins with gemstone eyes and be sure to have her demonstrate a glass of water spilled on a teflon-coated blouse! 405 Calle Principal, Monterey. 646-1565.

Bill Bates chatting up Hella Langer on the occasion of her 98th birthday.

Barbara Burnett, Carolyn Hardy and Susie Carr turned up for the CRA barbecue.

Hella Langer ever the embodiment of energy and feistiness

I APPROACH some guests chatting together and introduce myself. "Hi, I'm Sissi and I'm from the Carmel Pine Cone." My pen stands ready to jot down names, notes. But one of them says, with a smile of recognition,."Oh, of course, we met each other at so & so's. . . ." My pen suddenly remains still. "Remember, we were introduced by your friend so & so. . . ." "Oh," I say, as nonblankly as possible. My mind races at the speed of light, examining my dwindling options. I can be honest, confess I can't for the life of me remember what he's talking about, and thus reinforce a ditzy blonde image. Ugh! Or, I can pretend I know exactly what he's talking about, pray that he doesn't refer to yet another strange name, and get the heck out of there, holding on to my cool sophistication. Yup, that's the way to go. And then I — irritatingly and inconveniently— remember how politically incorrect Clinton has now made the art of social lying. Oh shoot, ditzy blonde it is, then. . . .

People and Places

By Sissi Maleki

■ Age and the celebration of Hella Langer

On August 25th, Hella Langer turned 98. Owner of Langer's Antiques for the past 41 years and the oldest retailer in our little village-by-the-sea, she still comes to work every day, handles requests for rare pieces of china and fusses over the latest shipments from Germany or Denmark. On her birthday, her small store was fairly bursting at the seams with well-wishers. Mayor Ken White presented her with a special birthday certificate from the city and the city council. Bill Bates stopped by to make her blush and giggle like a young girl. Numerous gifts covered the store's cabinets and tables. At one point I caught her opening a gift with a child's expression of awe and pleasure at Christmas. Scott Eccher, whose now departed grandmother had been a faithful client of Langer's in the '50s, shook his head in amazement at Hella's continued energy and feistiness. Janet Greene, her assistant, looked on with affection and exasperation as Hella continued giving orders in between sips of champagne. I tried to picture for a moment the many worlds her eyes have seen . . .

■ Piccadilly Park opens with great fanfare

All the tremendous hard work of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club was finally rewarded on August 25 with the ribbon-cutting celebration for the renovated Piccadilly Park. As music played in the background and water cascaded over the stunning water feature by Santa Cruz sculptor Peter Hanson, Garden Club members Hallie Mitchell, Mrs. George White and "Hank" Graham continued discussing the last-minute details of the park's wonderful facelift. Frank Wasko relaxed after a long day at work, chatting with Mayor Ken White and wife Jean. Even the weather seemed made-to-order for getting the park started off on the right foot.

■ Tennis fun for good causes

It was certainly unusual, to say the least, to note how many recreational tennis players on our Peninsula were reminded last week that either they should try to play more often because it was such fun, or that they really shouldn't subject others to their skills or lack thereof! Two events, the CRA Tennis Round Robin on August 26 and the American Cancer Society's Annual Tennis Classic on August 29, brought forth a host of good-natured ribbing and wry grimaces among participants.

The CRA matches on Wednesday at Pebble Beach were followed by a really neat & cozy barbecue at Stillwater Cove. Carmel City Administrator Jere Kersnar was still shaking his head in amazement at how Zaza Skidmore "carried" him on some serves. Paulette Missud and Peggy Purchase began talking French together and then admitted the best parts in foreign languages — especially French — were the naughty words! Pierre Prodis was in a terrific mood since his daughter Julie, an AP reporter in Texas, was about to move to the Mercury News in San Jose.

The American Cancer Society's Tennis Classic at Rancho Cañada was followed by a wonderful reception, dinner and silent auction. Laughs galore filled the hall as guests groaned over sore muscles and missed shots. Susan Ferriman enthused over the fun she had in the sun that day. But John Jenkins looked incredulously at her, asking, "Where the h— were you? I only saw fog!" Linda Balestreri, on her way out as two-year president of the organization, was feeling pretty contented (and gorgeous too!) over the growing influence of the Monterey Peninsula's ACS chapter. As a survivor (like many of the guests there that night) she continues to want new cancer patients to know that though they assume "life is over," it isn't necessarily so and the ACS is there to help them. KION's Hunter Finnell, another survivor, was shocked to hear from event chairperson Ann Mack how culture in certain communities plays a role in preventing patients and survivors from getting much-needed support. Dr. Jerome Rubin, an oncologist considered a saint by many on the Peninsula (including yours truly) who have experienced cancer in their families, was there lending his support with his wife Suellen. Joey Cobley, who runs the ACS Discovery Shop in Pacific Grove, confirmed that the thrift store will be the highest income-producing Discovery Shop in the nation. All in all, it was a great crowd, for a very good cause.

Betsy Tonti and Joan Scattini about to bid on some silent auction items at the American Cancer Society benefit.

■ TomatoFest makes it a great Sunday

I never thought I'd be in the presence of so many tomatoes in my life! At Quail Meadows on August 30, Gary Ibsen's TomatoFest drew both those who loved everything "tomatoey" and those who just wanted to enjoy the glorious weather, good music from the Mike Marotta Band and good gourmet food from all over — organized by Quail Lodge. Dawn Verdick, owner of Estate Coffee Roasting Company said it best: "Before today, I thought there were only two types of tomatoes: red and yellow!" The American Institute of Wine & Food is making sure youngsters know better with their Children's Garden Project showcased at the event. The only complaint I heard was from Betsy Kashinsky who also thought everything was great except for "no chocolate anywhere!" As a recovering chocoholic, I knew exactly what she meant.

Tasteful gourmet ghost inhabits Stokes Adobe

Traveling Gourmet

By Lotte Mendelsohn

WE INVOKED the adobe's famed ghost, Martha Harriet Gragg (she was "Hattie" to the many guests who flocked to her famed fêtes of long ago) to help us with our review today. Owner Kirk Probasco of Stokes was our medium in setting up the epicurean séance. What follows are the dishes that the spectral lady "advised" and that Chef Brandon Miller devised.

STOKES ADOBE

Monterey, CA
(831) 373-1110
OPEN 7 DAYS, LUNCH, DINNER AND 'SMALL BITES' IN BAR
SMALL BITES AND APPETIZERS: $3 TO $9
ENTREES: $12.50 TO $18
DESSERTS: $5.50

Reminding us of our years of residence in Mexico, Stokes is one of our favorite venues. We like to fall into the bar in mid afternoon — when it's impossible to get a bite to eat anywhere else — and have the great Stokes Burger, dressed with Gruyère cheese and caramelized onions, or the Salade Niçoise replete with albacore tuna, summer vegetables and a secret vinaigrette that sports three different kinds of olives. In France, the salad is usually presented mixed, but Stokes lays out its many elements prettily on a 14-inch plate, arranged like the spokes of a wheel.

Olives and sourdough aps

Herb-pickled Picholine, Kalamata and Aberquine olives are a house signature and they're whisked to the table when you're first seated, along with warm, whole wheat sourdough. It allows you to peruse the menu with less than ravening hunger and sets the tone for your leisurely meal.

Not all contemporary chefs are able to venture into the tricky waters of multi-cultural pairings. Miller balances visual creativity with an innate knowledge of taste chemistry.

Spectral Hattie was so enthused about the "small bites menu," that she kept materializing in various forms of dress. For Chef Brandon's version of tapas a la Californiana, she appeared dramatically in a lace mantilla with a rose in her teeth. Once accustomed to her antics, we ordered the Chef's Platter which allowed us to nibble at a variety of the morsels. We opted for the Monterey sardines with salsa verde, the Fava Bean Crostini (our top choice), Chili Marinated Eggplant and the Seared Ahi Tuna atop a dollop of black lentils, with the contrast of sungold tomatoes. Bring another Chef's Platter and we

A whisper of caraway

Soups illustrate this talent splendidly: for example, a cold cucumber soup, flavored with a whisper of caraway to counterpoint the stronger dill — the soup itself a vehicle for a phyllo-enclosed chunk of lobster claw. Or try an order of the intensely flavored white corn bisque; its creaminess owes as much to the use of kernels stripped from the corn cobs in the starter broth as to its goodly amount of cream.

Favorite entrées are the Grilled Lavender-Infused Pork Chop, with a summer vegetable "tian" (crumb-topped and baked) and Mission Fig Chutney. It's a man-sized dish and memorably delicious.

A word here about Chef Brandon's "sides." Each dish has a signature accompaniment. The grilled King Salmon shares plate honors with a sweet corn flan flavored with cardamom. Crispy Roast Duck Breast arrives atop an Almond-Citrus Risotto and the Soft-shelled Crab came with the flavorful parentheses of white corn pancakes topped with crème fraîche and Osetra caviar. A half roast chicken reclines on a bed of "panzanella," the central Italian iced bread salad.

Chef knows best

Entrées using broth as a base element in their presentation are usually a turn off for me. My mind argues with my palate about "flavor dilution." But here again, the chef outwits me with a pan-roasted wild striped bass, barely floated in a fish fumet, bolstered with penne pasta, vegetables and Hobbs smoked bacon bits. How well it all works!

The wine storage at Stokes Adobe is part of the décor of the room upstairs for larger functions. Five Sherries are featured with the Small Bites menu: the popular Dry Sack and Harvey's Bristol Cream, as well as three choices from the venerable Lustau caves — Jarana, Papirusa and Los Arcos being the favorites. The wine list, ample and constantly evolving, also carries a nice selection of half bottles; e.g., Etude's Carneros '96 Pinot Noir, $24; Vieux Telegraphe '95 Chateauneuf-du-Pape, $26; Monterey's Morgan '96 Chardonnay, $17. By-the-glass selections are available with choices changing daily.

Well, Hattie, ready for dessert?. . . I'm going to have today's special, the Blueberry Clafouti. Speak up, it's hard to hear you from behind that fan . . . You say you were especially invited to witness a Mexican volcano eruption from "on high" because you spoke Spanish? You're quite a kidder for a ghost! Now, dematerialize, please — I've work to do.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF RALPH SANDERS STOTSKY aka RALPH S. STOTSKY, RALPH STOTKSY, R.S. STOTSKY, and R. STOTSKY

Case No MP14103

To all heirs, beneficianes, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of RALPH SANDERS STOTSKY aka RALPH S. STOTSKY, RALPH STOTKSY, R.S. STOTSKY, and R. STOTSKY

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by BALDO M. KRISTOVICH in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that BALDO M. KRISTOVICH be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on September 18, 1998 at 9:30 AM in Dept. No. B located at 1200 AGUAJITO RD MONTEREY CA 93940.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Children's Experimental Theatre registers pupils Sept. 5 and 12

MARSHA GAMBRELL Hovick, founder and artistic director of the Children's Experimental Theatre of Carmel, has announced that registration will be held on two Saturdays, September 5 and 12, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. at the Forest Indoor Theatre, Mountain View and Santa Rita.

Young people from first through 12th grades may register. There are no auditions and no experience is needed, according to Hovick.

In its 39th year, Children's Experimental Theatre emphasizes theater skills with work in drama and dance. The year's work culminates in performances by each class. In the fall, rehearsals commence for the company's traveling troupe, which will perform before elementary schools throughout Monterey County.

Director Hovick is assisted with drama instruction by MaryAnn Schaupp-Rousseau and with rehearsals and costuming by Loel Shuler. Mark Shuler teaches stage combat, with emphasis on safety.

Classes are held on Saturdays during the school year, with first graders meeting on Mondays at 4 p.m. For information, call 624-1531.

Al Smith's
"Carmel Legends"
No. 15

If you didn't know it was there, you might easily pass by the GREAT WALL OF CARMEL. It's a Carmel stone monument, 2 1/2 feet wide and slightly higher than a man's head, that completely encloses an entire block. 4th and 5th Avenues are on north and south, Guadalupe on the east, Santa Rita on the west. All along the top of the wall are jagged stones set on edge, a distressing sadistic touch. The wall dates from 1925, when a man named Smith (from Southern California) caused it to be built by two stone masons who spent 3 year's on the project. He planned a major estate on the property, but went no further than a caretaker's cottage, elaborate walks, patios, pools, and a giant BBQ pit before his interests led him to a farm in the lower Carmel Valley and his block was sold. He headed back south, and today there are many small lots and private homes inside the enclosure. A few gateways have been broken through, and here and there a growing pine tree is winning the war of the wall. Start at Guadalupe and 4th where you'll find the main gate, a forbidding iron structure with the initial "S" set in small stones beside it, then walk around this interesting block...you'll enjoy it. You might even hear the hoof beats of the horse who haunts the great wall!

Scores of golfers will soon have a place to go

By KIRSTIE WILDE

IT'S NOT often that the Monterey County Board of Supervisors hears a parade of citizens appealing for approval of a development project. It's even more unusual when the only new structure proposed is a tiny, 10 X 20 feet building to house a single, unisex bathroom and storage for golf balls.

Not that there weren't some who vehemently opposed the little building, which will be at one end of a refurbished driving range between Stevenson Drive and Forest Lake Drive in the Del Monte Forest. A group called Concerned Residents of Pebble Beach hired an attorney to argue that approving the bathroom will open the door to "much larger structures" elsewhere in the forest.

The explosion of interest in golf among young people has swelled the ranks of the AT&T Pebble Beach Junior Golf Association to 1,742 local children. As one mother testified at the Monterey County Board of Supervisors meeting Sept. 1, "What do you do with 30 little golfers and no restroom in sight?"

But a long line of advocates for the project testified that the improved driving range and especially that little unisex bathroom will help local golfers, especially the young ones.

Terry Wilson of Pacific Grove said that his children, and 1,600 others have been able to use the driving range to learn golf. "Where else can you leave your child for five hours safely?" he said.

Kay Barbour, with the golf program for the Boys and Girls Club of Seaside, said "The Pebble Beach Co. generously lets us use the golf course, but the lack of a bathroom is a big problem for the kids."

Clark Struve, founder of the Jr. Golf Association and a coach for the Carmel High golf team, added "One hundred kids use the Peter Hay Golf Course [next door] at any one time. But there are no facilities besides the Lodge."

And D'Aulan Gentry spoke up for females everywhere, without needing to state the obvious, "We need a place for the girls to go."

An embarrassment

Pebble Beach V.P. of Planning Ed Brown said the overhaul of the driving range is long overdue. "Frankly, it's an embarrassment," he told the supervisors. The new range will be 30 yards longer — enough to accommodate everyone except maybe John Daly or Tiger Woods — and will have 28 off-street parking spots, a better teaching area and more tees.

The project will remove 120 pines larger than 12 inches in diameter, and 166 oaks and pines smaller than that. Each tree removed will be replaced by two, according to the permit conditions.

The grass at the new range will be watered with 100 percent reclaimed water, according to Brown.

Gretchen Housman, who teaches golf at Monterey Peninsula College, said the new range will not just benefit junior golfers. "Most of my classes are for people aged 60 and over. They need the expanded teaching area, too."

Bob Hunter, who has lived across the street for 27 years, sees the new project as an improvement. "My wife and I are 100 percent for the driving range and hope you pass it."

The supervisors did, by a vote of four to one, with Dave Potter voting no. He did not object to the project, he said, but felt it should go through the entire Environmental Impact Report public hearing and certification process along with the Pebble Beach lot program.

Urns and butterflies get OK in Carmel Knolls

By KIRSTIE WILDE

JAMES KISSEL can keep the whimsical Wedgwood paint job on his Carmel Knolls home now that the Monterey County Board of Supervisors has voted unanimously in his favor.

The 67-year-old artist has been embroiled in a two-year spat with neighbors in the Carmel Knolls Property Owners Association, some of whom objected to the Kissel home's French blue exterior with white urns, butterflies, leaves and flowers.

Even though the unusual design was approved by the Carmel Valley Land Use Advisory Committee and upheld by the county planning director, the president of the homeowners association appealed the decision to the supervisors September 1.

Carmel Knolls painter James Kissel celebrates his victory at the Board of Supervisors Sept. 1.

One member, Gerald Henares, testified that 45 other homeowners "really disapproved" of the design, saying it just didn't fit in with the "professional area."

Real estate agent Samuel Doud testified that the Kissel house, which everyone in the Knolls sees on their way up the hill, "is hurting property values."

Other neighbors and friends argued the opposite — that the community should not just tolerate, but welcome, the work of an accomplished artist. Anne Holliday pointed out that Kissel's murals are on display at Loyola University in Chicago. Katie Folsom called Kissel's "the nicest house on the street." Attorney Hugo Gerstl, a member of the Carmel Knolls Homeowners Association, said the association had no business trying to take away Kissel's freedom of artistic expression.

Supervisor Judy Pennycook and county counsel Doug Holland pointed out that Kissel's lot is not even included in the homeowners association, and is therefore not subject to its design authority. The board voted 5-0 to let Kissel keep his urns and butterflies.

After the meeting, the teary-eyed artist seemed overwhelmed by the decision, hugging his supporters and saying he held no animosity for his neighbors. Later in the day, Kissel surveyed one large plain blue wall that faces his back garden.

"I'd like to paint a two-story tree on that wall some day soon," he mused.

San Jose nonsense

Dear Editor:

Over and over again, a small group of well-known hysterics have warned us that the Hatton Canyon freeway and the new Los Padres Dam must be stopped to prevent "San Jose-ization" or "Los Angeles-ization" of the scenic Monterey Peninsula.

Never mind our urgent need for a reliable water supply. Never mind the traffic jams that trap Highlands residents in their homes every summer afternoon. All must be sacrificed to the paramount goal: stopping growth.

To "prove" the inevitability of their apocalyptic scenarios, our chicken littles point to projects like Rancho San Carlos (350 homes on 20,000 acres), September Ranch (117 homes on 891 acres), and Cañada Woods North (34 homes on 1,090 acres). These developments are depicted — with the naive cooperation of the local news media — as creeping urbanization.

But an item in this week's Herald showed just how false this local myth is. Kauffman and Broad, the story told, is set to build 530 homes and more than 400 apartments — all on 95 acres of undeveloped land in the City of San Jose! It's a typical urban project that will be result in a housing density more than 60,000 percent higher than what Rancho San Carlos proposed.

Unlike our neighbors to the North, the citizens of Monterey Peninsula long ago demanded — and got — general plans that permit very little growth. The development projects currently proposed or underway in Carmel Valley are proof that the provisions of these highly restrictive documents are being implemented.

Unless somebody can show how a new highway or a new dam will result in general plan amendments permitting substantial increases of allowable development, I don't

Volunteers make the difference

Dear Editor:

While staying at Carmel last week I walked down to the ocean to see the sunset and was pleasantly surprised to see the beautifully maintained beach. The Pine Cone's story on volunteer efforts to "keep it clean" was truly inspiring. Obviously, volunteers do make a difference!

Elinor Lynch, Palm Desert

'God's happiest moment'

Dear Editor:

This summer, my fiancee Kerstin and I spent a few wonderful days in your lovely and romantic Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Walking through the friendly roads, passing the magnificent gently constructed buildings, staying on the white sand of your beautiful beach and looking at the picture-book sunset, it seemed to us as if God must have made Carmel at his most happiest moment while creating Earth.

Many things have to come and stay together to establish such a unique community: An intelligent planing policy concerning the regulations for the structure, height and character of buildings, a special surrounding and environment, and last and most important the people — citizens — who care for their community.

To us it seemed that Carmel has more than just intelligent and caring people.

As special as the character of Carmel did the Carmel Pine Cone look to us while reading it. A newspaper that is part of this special character of Carmel and — it is obvious — that it is written and published from the bottom of a local heart. It is very informative and gives even to strangers an impression of how life is at this coastal diamond.

While reading the Pine Cone I wondered if the readers would be interested in corresponding about life and travel in other parts of the world and so I would like to invite everyone, who might be interested to write to me about life and travel in Germany, because that is where I live. My name is Uwe Becker and I am working in the human-resource department of a bank in Frankfurt, where I am also a member of the city parliament. (See http://members.aol.com/uwebecker1/stv.uwe.becker.html)

So, if you might be interested in corresponding about life on the other side of the globe, feel free to write via e-mail or by regular mail.

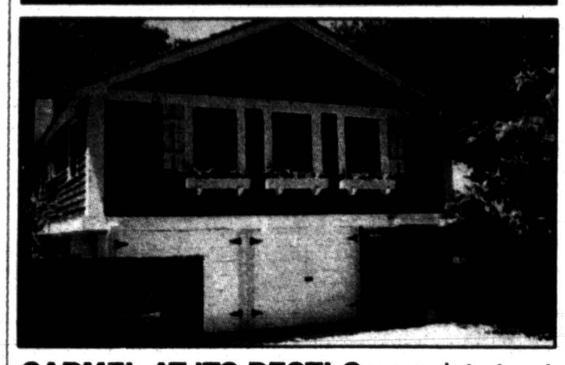
FRENCH ELEGANCE! This classic home is ideally suited for both elegant entertaining & comfortable living. It has a private drive, enhanced entry, formal dining & living rooms and a level lawn. The eat-in kitchen with fireplace is grouped with the family rooms to create an efficient work & play center. Four bedrooms, 2 full and 2 half baths. And bay & mountain views from this sunny location. $749,000.

CARMEL



CARMEL AT ITS BEST! On a quiet street a short walk to Carmel Beach and town is this lovely home. A two-story, newly updated property featuring a large one-bedroom upstairs unit with gorgeous high ceilings and stone fireplace in the living room, opening onto a deck nestled amongst the towering oaks. It also features a legal subordinate one-bedroom private unit downstairs with its own fireplace & kitchen. $699,000.

WALK TO TOWN! The warmth of the brick fireplace is reflected by the panelled walls and exposed beams of the bright and sunny living room. Understated from the street, this well-maintained home is surprisingly charming inside. Well laid out kitchen is just off the L-shaped living/dining room and overlooks the sunny patio. Good storage includes a large walk-in under the house. $550,000.

"BLUE MOON!" You'll fall in love with this immaculate and delightful 2-bedroom, 2-bath home located south of Ocean Avenue just a few blocks to shops and the white sands of Carmel Beach. With 5 skylights, spacious rooms, high ceilings, wood floors, French doors, and a terrific Country kitchen, this wonderful home offers truly once in a "Blue Moon" opportunity to own one of the most charming homes in Carmel-By-Sea. $775,000.

THE PERFECT GET-A-WAY! This timeless contemporary home is located just a few short blocks from the white sands of Carmel Beach and downtown Carmel. This easy-to-care-for cottage features an abundance of glass displaying tree-top views and private gardens. The living room opens to a spacious deck perfect for outdoor entertaining as you listen to the waves hit the nearby shore. The 2 bedrooms open to decks & gardens. $599,000.

OFF HIGHWAY 68

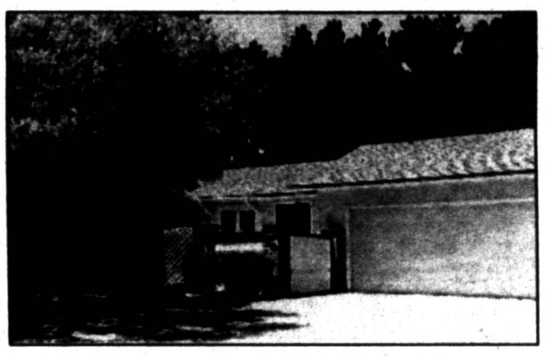
HIDDEN HILLS! Spectacular views from this 5-bedroom, 4-bath and 2 half baths home on a private cul-de-sac. Enjoy the expansive decking and recreation room with wet bar in this entertainer's paradise. The enclosed gazebo has a large hot tub overlooking the rolling hills and city lights. There is a separate library which can also be used as an office. A circular fireplace warms the vaulted-ceiling living room. Situated in a great location with easy access to Salinas, Monterey and Carmel. $759,000.

NEW ON MARKET! A terrific home just off San Benancio [SALE PENDING] beautifully maintained, a taste pride of ownership and is sited on a quiet corner in a quality neighborhood. With an open floor plan, the step-down living room and oversized family room open to decking. Three bedrooms — separate master with fireplace, and 2 baths. Enhanced by hardwood floors, skylights and zone heating. Just three blocks to San Benancio School. A real winner. $375,000.

CARMEL HIGHLANDS

OCEAN VIEWS! Imagine a classic Cape Cod home in an absolutely pristine condition and located near the ocean in a prime neighborhood. Following extensive remodeling, this house has smart interior decors; spacious living/dining room, hardwood floors & Berber carpeting, 3 bedrooms plus den, 3 full baths, private decks & beautiful landscaping (approximately 1/2 acre). Don't hesitate, this opportunity will be snapped-up fast. $1,195,000.

CARMEL VALLEY



PRIVACY & CONVENIENCE! Privacy abounds from this flowing floor plan of 2350 sq. ft., 3-bedroom (one may be used as office/den), 3-bath home on a wooded 1/2-acre parcel overlooking the forest and rolling hills. Custom wood shutters on kitchen, dining, and bedroom doors and windows. Vaulted beamed ceilings in master suite, living and dining, kitchen and family rooms. The wonderful Carmel Views neighborhood affords the solitude of country living while being within 5 minutes to town. There is over 600 feet of wood decking plus an enclosed courtyard and great backyard. $549,000.

MONTEREY

NEW ON MARKET! Gorgeous views from this spacious home in a sunny country-quiet location. This two-story home offers a flexible plan of 3460 sq. ft. to allow for a variety of living options. The tiled entry opens to a spacious living room that features open-beam ceilings, stone fireplace and glass doors that lead out to an expansive view deck. The master suite on the main floor features his/her mirrored closets. Live in harmony on the lower floor with 3 additional spacious bedrooms, inside laundry and family room with wet bar. Enjoy efficient storage space, an attic and office/hobby room. Easy-care landscaping which includes a putting green for the golf enthusiast. $735,000.

CLASSY CONTEMPORARY! Situated on 2+ lots above the Presidio, this stylish home offers a great plan for relaxed living. Featuring about 2870 sq. ft. of living space, this 3-bedroom, 2-1/2-bath home boasts spaciousness throughout. You'll love the fireplaces in the living room, master suite & 2nd bedroom. Privacy is yours in one of the Peninsula's most convenient locations. $499,000.

NEW ON MARKET! An Old Monterey bungalow, faded and tired, this home could be restored to its charm of the past. This 2-bedroom, 1-bath home even has a bay view from upstairs. [SALE PENDING] brick fireplace and an enclosed porch make this "fixer-upper" worth the effort. The desirable Spaghetti Hill location make this residence a wonderful find for the creative buyer! $225,000.

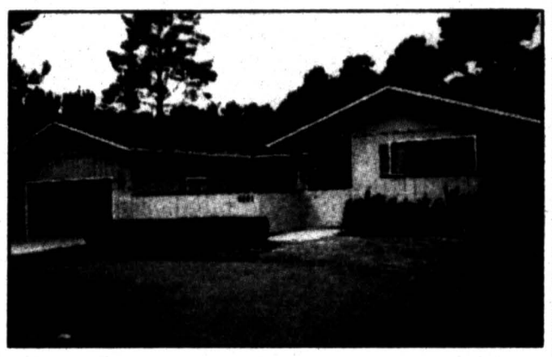
CONVENIENT LOCATION! Discover this 3-bedroom, 2-bath treasure behind Peter's Gate, one of Monterey's best areas. With almost 2000 sq. ft. of comfortable living space, this residence features a spacious family room/kitchen area, upper-level master suite and sprinklers that complete this wonderful property. Conveniently located to almost everything. $499,000.

STATELY AND GRACIOUS! A stunning Georgian Manor set on 4.4 wonderful acres in historic old Monterey. One of the last large residential acreages built 50 years ago. This 6-bedroom, 6-1/2-bath home is great for a large family or entertaining inside or out! Beautiful & lush gardens and swimming pool. A piece of old Monterey's history. $2,700,000.

PEBBLE BEACH

NEW ON THE MARKET! This stunning contemporary home is situated on a park-like setting with privacy enhanced by adjacent greenbelt. Featuring a dramatic living room with vaulted ceiling and marble fireplace, private garden patio and spacious master suite with sitting area, this sophisticated 3-bedroom, 3-bath home offers spectacular views of the golf course. $795,000.

"POINT OF VIEW!" Refinement, distinction and sophistication describe this spectacular residence. Offering a generous 7000 sq. ft. of living space, a heated pool and spa, and sited on a fenced & gated ocean-view site of nearly an acre, this 3-bedroom, 4.5-bath home is located just off famed 17 Mile Drive, within a stroll to The Lodge and private Beach & Tennis Club. The location...superb, the amenities...vast, the condition...definitive. If elegance is your way of life, you have found your new home. $4,600,000.



GOLFER'S DELIGHT! This charming home features a large living room and dining area that share a courtyard. The family room offers a raised-hearth fireplace and custom bookcases. A bright kitchen and brick patio enhance the 3-bedroom, 2-1/2-bath home. $619,000.

ARTISTIC OCEAN-VIEW RETREAT! Nestled privately amongst beautiful oaks and redwood trees on almost an acre, this stylish 3-bedroom, 3-bath contemporary redwood home offers spectacular ocean and Point Lobos views. The home has extensive decking and convenient one-level living on the lower level, and detached guest suite. A desirable location only a few blocks from The Lodge and Pebble Beach Golf Links. $3,250,000.

SOUTH COAST

BIG SUR GRECIAN VILLA! Uniquely beautiful, this rustic, yet elegant home of artistic design offers a flexible floor plan, privacy, and an easy-care acre. Gently white-washed wood interior, updated tiled baths & kitchen — a 3-bedroom, 2-1/2-bath home decorated with sophistication & style. $825,000.

SEASIDE

CLOSE TO SCHOOLS! A well-maintained home on a quiet street in a nice neighborhood. Features include a large living room with fireplace, cozy dining room, 3 bedrooms & 2 baths. Elementary and junior high schools are within walking distance. $210,000.

INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITY! On a large, level fenced lot are these two units, each with one bedroom & bath. And there is room for a large third unit. A 10x10 storage building is on site. Basically, however, the value is in the property. It offers great potential for a new development. $160,000.
